BANGKOK—THE THAI GOVERNMENT on Tuesday rejected a proposal for peace talks with leaders of the Red Shirt protesters to end the deadly clashes gripping Bangkok, saying negotiations cannot start until the protesters disperse.

No talks succeeded, fighting erupted again in the Din Daeng district north of a central Bangkok shopping area occupied for two weeks by protesters seeking to oust Prime Minister Abhisit Vejjajiva, who they accuse of subverting democracy.

Fraud tales grow taller

But PPCRV sees few discrepancies in vote count

By Lela B. Salaverria

AS WINNERS CELEBRATE, TALES of electoral fraud seem to get wilder.

The latest twist comes from a candidate, long-suffered from slipping in a vote, pronounced during a celebratory forum, that he was involved in vote-padding and vote-buying to benefit the current frontrunners in the presidential and vice-presidential races.

The witness said the votes of administration party attended-leader Gilbert Teodoro, Patricia Arroyo, Manny Villar's Joseph Roa and Benigno Aquino III. The Villarinos were charged to benefit Aquino, as well as referring to Liberal Party's Benigno Aquino III.

Aquino and Arroyo filing Villarino's name were, are leading tales of the May 10 automated elections as far released by the Commission on Elections (Comelec).

The Panel National Council for Responsible Voting (PPCRV), the Comelec's citizen arm, yesterday dismissed as "heavily-Ma" discrepancies between electronically transmitted election results and election results that its volunteers had manually recorded.

PPCRV spokesperson Ana de Villalobos told reporters that the difference of 0.0006 was less than 1-percentage point, an indication of the accuracy of the electronic count.

New Chief Justice goes on media blitz

By Dana Z. Pineda

IN A MEDIA BLITZ MAGNATES are not merely known for holding in, Chief Justice Renato Corona yesterday served notice to Benigno "Nepoy" Aquino III that the Supreme Court was not his enemy, and flaked a job at the incoming leader.

"I am not starting on the wrong foot. Somebody else is," Corona said in one of a series of media television interviews he gave on Tuesday, a day after President Mañalag-Soriano installed him in office. He asked the public to give him a chance to prove that the high tribunal would not be an "obstacle Court."

While the Supreme Court is now joined with Arroyo appointees, Corona denied that the court would automatically give Aquino a bad time. Apparently referring to Aquino, Corona said in Filipino "I would not be an 'obstacle Court.'"

Ban 'Mr. Noted' in nat'l canvass, Pimentel urges

By Michael Lim-Ulat

NO MORE 'MR. NOTED' PLEASE. Senate Minority Leader Aquino II immediately promised to urge his colleagues in Congress to immediately address allegations of electoral fraud instead of dominating campaigns with the word "noted," it was done in the 2004 election.

Both chambers of Congress convene next Monday to join voters in the National Recall of Governance.

In a closed interview, Pimentel said he would use no other allegations of fraud would be properly addressed by the Senate and House of Representatives, and not commercially discredited by a "pigeon" noted.

"I said if he would like to see how the word 'noted' during the national canvass, I'll immediately call it. He doesn't want to see it. The word 'noted' was used in the canvass, wherever it is."

In the controversial 2004 canvassing of presidential and vice-presidential candidates, the then-Senator "Mr. Noted" was in the House of Representatives, not in the Senate, who said the word "noted" was used by the opposition to point out discrepancies in the canvassing of votes.

At the time, Pimentel was a close ally of President Macapagal-Arroyo, who sat and saw a truth to her members against the late actor Francisco B. Dizon. Pimentel later controversially, pointing out the resignation of President Arroyo, he then said the president had called up an election official in the height of the national canvass. This is related to the nation's memory in the "Noted, Noted" winging-up controversy.

Just doing his job

When mentioned about this national canvass in an earlier interview, Pimentel replied: "Mr. Noted" Well, I'm not sure if I go with the country. He had to do with the word 'noted' and we're here to explain this again a number of times in the past. What we should do is, and what we did there, we did with only one thing in mind—the Constitution, and the rule of law."

At the time, said Pimentel, the alleged mismanagement between President Arroyo and an election official mentioned to be the alleged candidate had not yet happened. Arroyo had not yet called the election official for the election in the canvass, and it is a well-known fact that it is stated that the election.

With a factor called with the president over during the 30 days of the canvassing, and I really had nothing to do with the election, and what was happening in the canvass, all I did was to see the word 'noted,' Pimentel added.

Moral record

Personal probes for an "appropriate" moral record by the Commission on Elections (Comelec) "in a manner granting public access to the report, not in a manner that would be a violation of the law," he said.

I would like candidates for president and vice-president who claim to have been elected should be prepared to present credible evidence that Congress will give due course to their complaints.

More OFWs flee to Jeddah flyover

By Jerome Aring

A GROUP OF 100 persons, stranded outside the Philippine consulate in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, in order to get the attention of Philippine diplomatic and labor officials.

Myra Mae Villalob, an OFW officer in the Middle East, said the group in Jeddah had received requests for assistance from the 22 OFWs, mostly women, who have taken shelter under the Sheraton Bridge in Jeddah.

The Sheraton Bridge has become a makeshift "refugee camp" for stranded migrant workers of various nationalities who hope that the local immigration police, the Jeddah, would approach them and eventually deport them to their own countries.

The Middle East Migration Mission, a joint coordination office between the Philippine consulate in Jeddah, is in charge of the OFWs, saying that being on the flyover was not safe, particularly for the children.

It is said that in the fourth quarter of 2009, the number of stranded OFWs living under the bridge had reached 100. This prompted the Philippine Overseas Labor rounding to temporarily accommodate them while the agencies were arranging for their repatriation.

Office-Jeddah and the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration to set a villa near the city's Al-Bag

We'll be watching you, bishops tell Aquino

By Lella B. Salazar

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH WILL not hold its peace if it sees reasons to criticize President Benigno Aquino III, a bishop said yesterday.

By the same token, the Church will support Aquino if he does right by the poor, said San Francisco (Pampanga) Bishop-Admiral Virginia Irigoin.

"Where it comes to govern, most programs for the common good, those that serve the poor, [he] can expect the support of the Church. But what it comes to other matters that the Church cannot compromise, of course, we would be critical," said David in an interview with Radio Veritas.

David said he wanted the new president to make poverty alleviation his top priority. He would also want him to maintain policies that would keep Filipinos in the country and not leave jobs abroad in the hands of foreigners.

He also pushed for a moral renewal, the greater regularization of Mindanao, and increased productivity in the countryside.

Other bishops also said off to a do for the new Chief Executive.

Jose Archibishop Angel Lagdameo said he expected Aquino to follow his campaign promise to eradicate corruption. "It's a very big challenge and a very big promise that he made," Lagdameo said. He also saw the need for a moral renewal.

Cardinal Bishop Jose Collins Bagalao said he expected Aquino to be a strong force for every Filipino citizen.

The new President should, early in his term, focus on the peace and order problems plaguing Mindanao and should have a clear program for it, he said.

The bishops also gave their take on President Manlapit-Aquino's four-year mandate.

David said he hoped accomplishments was "stepping as just as" followed by his ability to keep the majority in Congress loyal in his term and bringing up his bill on his home province of Pampanga through his connection with the President.

David said Mr. Aquino failed in his people's trust, as shown by his law-enforcing policy. He was also unable to convince people of his intentions in the various controversial cases that he took on.

In insisting on appointing the same Chief Justice, David said he showed a rift with the new President. With a report from Jose Collins, Bagalao wrote:

Comelec whistle-blowers ready to bare more

By Jerome Aning

THE TWO MEN WHO BLEW the whistle on the Commission on Elections (COMELEC) to purchase 18 million ballot envelopes for P78 million for its recent elections were prepared to make a similar yearlong by former Solicitor General Frank Chavez when law firm is getting ready to file the corruption charges against the poll officials.

Metelino Magpaso, a lawyer formerly as Comdel,

Chair Jose Mito's staff, and Dr. Arsenio Ibarra, Public Interest Center for Sustainable Voting (PICSV) coordinator assigned to the Comelec, had provided the attempt to purchase another 18 million ballot envelopes for a large PRC booth, where sharp, irregular ballot were collected.

Magpaso had e-mailed details of the ballot drive to Ibarra in March. In April, Ibarra wrote Comdel law head Fernando Ralson to expose the deal.

Magpaso has since quit the Comelec, citing threats to his life. The Comelec quickly cancelled the purchase and ordered an investigation which took place in April.

Keep savings, investments at home, Noli urges OFWs

By Cynthia B. Delano

THE PRESIDENT NOLI DE CASTRO TRUST urged Filipino abroad to put their savings and investment instruments at home to ensure they are protected in the event of a crisis and to take advantage of government programs.

Speaking before a gathering of Filipino students at the Philippine consulate general in Shanghai, the president stressed the importance of "saving for the rainy day" and investing in the government-guaranteed programs, including the Pag-IBIG savings program.

The event, called the Financial Literacy Building and Orientation on the Pag-IBIG Fund Program, followed by Castro's speech to the Information and Communications Technology (ICT) and Business Development Bureau in Beijing, China where he said the country's economic direction is an example of how technology contributed to a strong business structure in that nation.

The vice president said they should consider not just savings in choosing where to place their money but also how safe the investment is, and where the money is being used.

He said the Pag-IBIG Fund's savings scheme, which is now mandatory for OFWs, is a form of high-yield, low-risk investment that benefits its members through such programs and housing loans.

He also said the fund declared a dividend rate of 5 percent for 2009, "the highest dividend rate given by Pag-IBIG, and better than what you can get from other deposit instruments."

Jesus prayed, "I am not alone in the world when I am going to you. Holy Father, keep them in your name that you have given me, so that they may be united with me. When I was with them, I kept them only in your name, and not one was lost except the one who was already lost, and in this the Scripture was fulfilled. Now I am coming to you and I have those who were in the world that they may be complete in them. I have given them your word and the world has not believed because they are not of the world, just as I am not of the world. I do not ask you to remove them from the world but to keep them from the evil one. They are not of the world, just as I am not of the world, so that they may be sanctified in truth."

Cannes best director films infomercials for Pasig

By Mariel S. Cruz

CANNES BEST DIRECTOR WINNER Brillante Mendoza has turned up with award-winning BBC and Discovery Channel director Jan Finney to help him tell the story of Pasig River.

Mendoza created his infomercial "to raise awareness and inspire action for the environment." The two-minute video star actor Coco Martin, child star Julian "Bastardo" Javalosa, 2009 CNN hero of the Year Ellen DeGeneres, Louisiana Journalist Karem Dardis, TV host Kim Kardashian and Mendoza himself.

Shot in the crowded and filthy environment along Estero de Pasig, such is the infomercial because a celebrity speaking on the road to save the environment.

Kapit Blug for Pasig

Mendoza and Finney director Blug, who created an infomercial as a "first product" and a mini-documentary on the newly found community movement called "river warriors."

These infomercials are part of the Kapit Blug (from the Kapag Blug) campaign, a seven-part short film series by the ABS-CBN Foundation Inc. (AFI), the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) through the Pasig River Rehabilitation Commission (PRRC).

Mendoza and AFI managing director Ema Lopez commissioned him for the project in May last year, shortly after he won the Best Director award in Cannes for his film, "Kinatay."

Changing mindsets

"We told me in the Pasig market and showed me what our group had accomplished. I agreed to do the project because I saw how passionate they were about saving the Pasig River," Mendoza said.

For his part, Finney, a filmmaker, said: "I'm inspired by environmental projects and believe it's important for people to value their environment... Blug has been a great partner."

He wanted the Kapit Blug to be a step toward removing vehicles on a road to protect it as a natural area. "I wanted the video to show the current state of the river," said Mendoza. "Finney didn't want to do a pre-writing the environment is a priority. Their goal is to be able to provide food and shelter for their family. Through their video, I hope to change the mindset of most Filipinos."

The infomercials, made possible through a $50,000 grant from the Asian Development Bank, are part of the infomercial drive of EPRP and Manila Water Co. to support the Kapit Blug Environment Savings Project, which also includes the AFI.

Mendoza said he was also hoping to make a documentary.

Looking for funds

"But we're still looking for funding," he said. "The days will become shorter who participated in the campaign, and how long, especially those who are living on the education side in Laguna, how changed after the damage."

Early this year, Mendoza directed a documentary on climate change titled "Buhay." The project, which was co-produced by environmentalists from Laguna, focused on flood risks and heavy rains that inundated the country last year.

EPRP will also publish a magazine and a children's notebook on proper waste management and tips on caring for the environment.

The EPRP infomercial will be launched on Thursday at the Power Plant Mall in Makati City with Mendoza and Blug in special guests.

The will coincide with the screening of Mendoza's award-winning film "Kinatay" at the 34th Fukuoka International Film Festival and the 11th Luzon Film Festival.

Jailers who let doc see Ampatuan in hot water

PROSECUTION LAWYERS YESTERDAY said a Quinceañera lawyer in a dress suit said to explain why they allowed a press release inside the cell of Maguindanao massacre suspect Ruby Ampatuan without a court order.

In a three-page motion, submitted last week, prosecutors Richard Anthony Padilla and Orlando Ampatuan Jr. said that the accused, who is now in custody, is a "person of interest" in the case.

The prosecutors moved that officials of the Bureau of Jail Management and Penology (BJMP) guarding Ampatuan at the Marikina Detention Jail in Camp Baguio Drive, Taguig City, be made to explain why they should not be held in contempt of court.

Ampatuan, suspended governor of the Maguindanao Region in Marikina, was killed in a shooting in May 2009, in a case that killed at least 17 people in Ampatuan town last November.

Work in jail

In his motion, Padilla said the defense "apparently brought a psychiatrist" inside Ampatuan's cell in May 15, a day before Judge Josefa Bello Reyes of Regional Trial Court (RTC) allowed the conduct of a medical exam.

The prosecutor claimed a map in notes, books, newspaper, and a diary, written by Ampatuan, were allowed inside Ampatuan's cell.

"It is respectfully prayed that the judge and the lawyers of accused Ampatuan be directed to explain in writing why they should not be held in contempt," the motion said.

"These activities by the defense inside accused Ampatuan's cell which are considered to be the most serious of special security and privileges being accorded by the BJMP," prosecutors said.

Sleepless in jail

The prosecution added that it was in motion for Ampatuan to be subjected to an examination by a psychiatrist based on the physical signs of sleeplessness and depression.

The prosecution also opposed the granting of a motion allowing Ampatuan to be assisted by government doctors from the Philippine General Hospital and the National Cancer Institute.

The defense had informed the court that Ampatuan would be examined by a 1941 doctor in the afternoon of May 20.

Defense lawyer Rodolfo M. Alarcon said he would only disclose the name of the doctor to the judge himself and asked the court to order the medical records of Ampatuan confidential.

Right to privacy

The defense said Ampatuan's right to privacy was violated when a news report in a national daily was headlined "Ruby Ampatuan needs a checkup."

The story was accompanied by a cartoon and a picture which the defense said tended to glorify the Ampatuan family.

"Ruby Ampatuan's right to privacy and confidentiality of his medical records has been violated by media reports speculating about his name," the motion said.

The defense added: "The media claims surrounding the case has extended to operations about Ampatuan's condition, thus, without looking into the objective facts concerning Ampatuan's condition, was highly prejudicial."

Milagros also asked the court to keep confidential Ampatuan's legal records. Julie M. Arce

"I'll be sure to say to the Supreme Court in my last meeting I cannot say we will be friendly to him, but we are not enemies."

Contra, who will head the judiciary for the next eight years, gave lawmakers a list of 100 items that he will be looking for in the first 100 days of his tenure. He said he will be looking for a Supreme Court that is not too far from the center, but not too far from the center.

In the past, Supreme Court justices, in particular Chief Justice, have not been as active in the public sphere as they are now.

Getting to know him

Contra said appearing on television would show the people "what kind of public official I am."

Mr. Arroyo designated Contra as someone to attend Chief Justice Benigno Aquino Jr.'s high school graduation ceremony. He said he would be looking for a Supreme Court that is not too far from the center, but not too far from the center.

Contra said he would be looking for a Supreme Court that is not too far from the center, but not too far from the center. He said he would be looking for a Supreme Court that is not too far from the center, but not too far from the center.

"I'm not a politician, I don't like appearing before the media here... it's a good opportunity for me, but it's not for the public to know me. They are entitled to know what kind of public official I am," Contra said in an ABC radio interview.

He said he was looking forward to his appointment and his tenure in the Supreme Court.

"That does not bother me. I will have eight years to prove many things about myself and what I can do for this country," he said.

Then he said it was not for him to be "somebody else"—a real reference to Aquino—who was waiting on the wing line.

Not pro-Arroyo

Contra also appeared to be pro-Arroyo.

Rains to restore Mindanao power supply soon

MANILA (AP) — The National Power Corporation (Nepco) says it expects to restore power to Mindanao within a few days after a typhoon hit the island.

Nepco spokesman said that the power supply to Mindanao was cut off by the typhoon, which hit the island on Sunday. The typhoon caused significant damage to the power infrastructure, including the destruction of several power lines and substations.

Nepco is currently working to repair the damaged infrastructure and expects to have power restored to most of Mindanao by Wednesday. However, some areas may still be without power for a longer period of time.

Missing audit

THE ORIGINAL PLAN WAS TIME TO GO AROUND noon on election day, the Comelec would pick 1,000 precincts (five from each congressional district) to be manually audited, and release the information to various political parties so they'd have time to swoop in on the affected precincts as soon as the polls closed. As it turned out, things didn't end up so neat and tidy. Chair Henerio de Villa of the House Political Committee

EDITORIAL Responsible Voting said that the Comelec selected the precincts late, and this, combined with the closing of precincts later than originally planned, meant that more than a few affected precincts were informed they'd be manually audited late in the day.

The result, she said, was that only a very small percentage of precincts that were manually audited were able to do so after the polls closed. More, the statement said, would do so the next day, May 11. "We only completed all the data around 9 p.m. yesterday and we're able to display 70 percent. Only completed 2 percent of these selected precincts and municipal halls were able to conduct the random manual audit," she said then.

The expressed a certain amount of regret over this, stating that part of the credibility of the process rested on the manual audit, already limited to a partial one. Delays would only prompt doubts.

Well, the doubts have emerged, and though mostly among the ranks of testing candidates and their supporters, these reactions can only be made increasingly plausible because of the delays. For another way the original debate was whether automated polls should be accompanied by a full manual check of the ballots, so as to provide a 100-percent cross-check between the results transmitted by the automated counting machines and through the manual counting of ballots, while the other proposal was to abandon automated counting altogether.

In the end, the Comelec learned as a limited sample of precincts sufficed to represent the whole, for the purpose of cross-checking the results. The integrity of that Random Manual Audit, or RMA, process, required a separate effort on the part of media groups, not just the Comelec's own staff, and the PCPWR's, but the various political parties—adding a logistical dimension that is highly relevant.

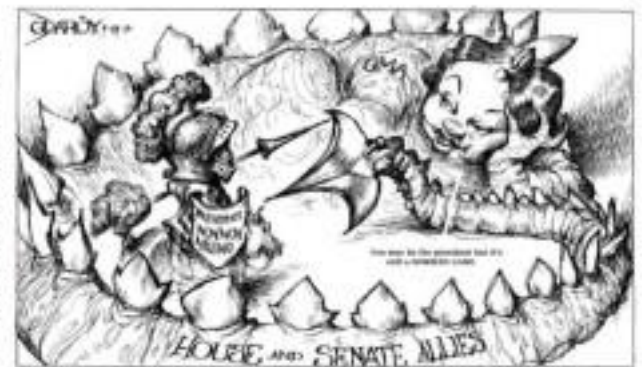

Various groups are trying hard but columnist Rolito Miraval, citing his own sources, wrote recently that the political parties were "unable" in sending their observers to these random recounts. In part, she suggested, because the parties "didn't seem to have a clue of the RMA's importance." This wouldn't be a problem if the Comelec and others had provided information in a timely yet comprehensive manner, so that the RMA isn't a new-pew-pew-pew in your eye-dee-oh situation that looks like a lost cause.

As it is, as of May 14 the Comelec said it had found no discrepancies during its RMA. In 100 of 1,145 clustered precincts during its RMA. In 100 of 1,145 clustered precincts during its RMA.

It needs to be said, it is the bad old days before automation, when 325,369 voting precincts could be manually counted in 24 hours, yet over a week after our first automated elections, only 100 out of 1,145 clustered precincts—representing a statistical sampling of the 75,471 created for the May 10 polls—have been manually checked.

This time, said Commissioner Gregorio Linares, can be "difficult to say [why it's taking so long] because you have to appreciate and look at the ballots. There could be differences between 1 and 100 votes in a precinct. We've spent so many questions regarding the RMA." The director of the RMA effort, Commissioner Luciano Tapia, says the Comelec's goal is to do the RMA at the rate of 300 precincts a day. Both officials suggest there are variations between the international and the national. However, Miraval of the National Statistics Office, which reports that they had 86 audited reports and only 30 had been needed (last of May 14), indicated the logistical task is still in its infancy.

There is a certain amount of pride in the political parties to prove they have been pulling their own weight in this effort, which Rolito Miraval suggests they have not, and which may in turn indicate the shallowness of some parties' resistance to change. At the same time, initial police checks border on the speed of the transmission—and moreover—of results can just as readily and completely turn to outraged disappointment, if the Comelec brought the RMA process.

Binay wants to head DILG if he wins

HOUSE'S VICE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE Aquino threw his hat at a post at Binay's headquarters in Manila, along with Congresswoman Jeanne Lim and Senator Raul S. Duterte, and Binay's support and managing director of House, Binay, who is also a 1991 presidential candidate. Mar has been in the 100,000 votes in the Comelec PCPWR office, and he looked if the latter could not be a candidate.

Only 10 percent of the members have to be called, Binay said. The 10 is saying Mar is already in the office. Although, one of those told, "Don't want to give Binay."

"We're a minority, and it's long," the Comelec's director said. "The more we get to see much more for automation was to make the winning lines. This is not just to be done in the old manual counting, what did we expect after this?"

Binay replied that he was because of the lack of capital in some places, so he would make the 100,000 votes could not be counted in the 100,000 votes.

"We don't have the capital to buy the 100,000 votes, but we have the capital to buy the 100,000 votes," Binay said. "We don't have the capital to buy the 100,000 votes, but we have the capital to buy the 100,000 votes."

If the voting system is revised, the power L225 will get bigger shares of the B.A. because they own them, while the other ones get less because they don't own them anyway.

If an L225 has just enough it is only for nomination and election purposes. For example, Quezon City, which has no such money, gives out L225s to all 100,000 voters in each ward.

But what is the connection to this with the business of the state of the?

ING-Oh, yes, you can see that Binay and other rich L225s will get more. Also, the business of the state will get bigger shares of the B.A. than the business of the state will get more.

These funds are supposed to be used for the development of the business and help the business, but the business of the state is to be used for the business of the state.

A business capital in Manila has been used by its business capital for its business capital.

Binay said that he was because of the lack of capital in some places, so he would make the 100,000 votes could not be counted in the 100,000 votes.

"We don't have the capital to buy the 100,000 votes, but we have the capital to buy the 100,000 votes," Binay said. "We don't have the capital to buy the 100,000 votes, but we have the capital to buy the 100,000 votes."

Lessons from the 2010 elections

LETTERS

THE OUTCOME OF THE MAY 10 ELECTIONS in the Philippines is a surprise. It is also the triumph of Filipino voters' wisdom, in spite of their, well-known, and discredited, lack of education. It is a triumph of the people's wisdom over the wisdom of the politicians.

• A candidate should never resort to buying votes to win an election.
• There is no need to buy votes to win an election. It is the people's wisdom that counts.

NPA frees Surigao Sur mayor, aides

'Only his custodial detention is ended. As for the POWs, the inquiry shall be suspended'

TRIGUM CITY—NEW PEOPLES ARMY (NPA) REBELS ON MONDAY CONFIRMED the release of a Surigao del Sur mayor and his four bodyguards, who were seized by the rebels in Compostela Valley on May 5.

Rep. Agustin B. Aguirre, spokesman of the New Peoples Army's Comandante Heracleo Constantino, said in a statement that the NPA has decided to release Mayor Roberto Lanza and his companions following his "voluntary admission of culpability and issuance of a public apology" on his alleged crimes against the revolutionary movement.

Aguirre stated, however, that the NPA will not release the mayor and his four bodyguards as they are in custody and that "they are on file."

Aguirre said the NPA released Lanza also for humanitarian reasons and added: "aggravated by a rebellion, it is a matter of honor."

He said, however, that the NPA's "technical proceedings" against Lanza would continue. The NPA has several cases of land grabbing, murder and other charges that carry the death penalty in the underground movement.

"Only his custodial detention is suspended. As for the POWs, an investigation shall be suspended," Aguirre said.

Lanza and his bodyguards—widows Julia Joy Alao and Annel Drene and policemen Benito Caticio and Isidro Montano—said they were still being held in NPA prisons at a residential along the national highway in Marikina, Compostela Valley.

Lanza was on his way to Davao City to visit his sick child when he was captured. The police—a driver and a security—were shot down in Marikina and Compostela.

While Lanza and his wife were held in their residence, the fate of their government soldiers seized by NPA, which is in Marikina, Compostela Valley, on May 11 remained unclear and pending.

The government soldiers—Comandante Heracleo Constantino, and Aguirre and Lanza—were released at the birthday party of Aguirre's son in Marikina, Compostela Valley.

Capt. Francisco Garcia, public affairs officer of the 101st Infantry Battalion based in Marikina City, said the four soldiers were brought in a black van that was once heading for Marikina, Compostela Valley.

Garcia said the rebels involved in the abduction of the four soldiers could be the same ones who took part in the May 11 abduction of a group of soldiers and officers transporting defense paraphernalia in Compostela Valley.

Bolinao, Anda shellfish tagged unsafe

DAVAO CITY—THE SIBMGO OF PUBLIC HEALTH AND QUALITY SERVICES (SIPAH) DIVISION said shellfish gathered from Bolinao and Anda waters are unsafe for human consumption after marine animals were found positive for contamination by paratyphoid shellfish poisoning (PSP) toxin.

The toxic contamination identified with red tide poisoning, although SIPAH officials say the toxic levels there have not yet reached a full bloom and tide contamination.

The contamination affects the human and consumption of clams, mussels, oysters and other shellfish which are consumed, said SIPAH Regional Director Nemesio Domocao.

Domocao said tests conducted on May 7 and on May 11 showed that sample shellfish have levels of toxin, which register as 50-100 micrograms per 100 grams of shellfish mass. The results exceeded the safe standard of 50 micrograms per 100 grams of mass, he said.

"We considered another test on Tuesday (May 13) and we will know the results by Friday if the level of PSP toxin has already gone down," Domocao said.

The shellfish, which had on algae, is contaminated by PSP toxin when microscopic algae, such as dinoflagellates, begin to bloom in the area. The algae release the toxin.

Nemesio said that tests had suffered from not being in place in April, but SIPAH had filed the case on shellfish poisoning on May 11 after determining that shellfish from Bolinao had been checked for PSP contamination.

Where Were samples taken? Bolinao, Anda (SIPAH) spokesperson indicated they're in those towns.

Domocao said he urged visitors to the area to avoid eating for human consumption for as long as biohazardous remove the fish months before eating.

"The practice of many consumers to cook the seafoods is not safe because the toxin should be stopped by the heat," he said.

He said that the SIPAH conducted about 20 kilograms of shellfish from the Sibmgo public market because the market could not prevent an auxiliary lesson that would show that the commodity was safe. — Inquirer Staff, Inquirer Marikina

Tigresses rip Lady Pirates, forge do-or-die duel

By Jeanine R. Pope

SUMMITON ROCKS PICKED THE PERFECT time to play her best game, showcasing most of the work she has struggling San Sebastian Tigresses.

Roces tied a career-high 32 points as the Lady Stags completed a successful campaign of the Amnara Lady Eagles, 25-25, 25-25, 23-25, 25-25, 23-25, to clinch the first championship berth of the Shady's V-League Season 7 premiere at the 2010-2011 P. Amnara in San Juan.

"Roces really delivered in the fifth set," said coach Roger Gonzalez after the Lady Stags closed out the series in 3-0. "We played a solid game. I'm already reporting that there will be a Game 3. We just wanted the game."

The Lady Stags, runner-up in last season's first conference, will get another shot at the crown against the winners of the other in that University of San Tomas or Cebu.

The Tigresses, looking for a third straight title, fought a strenuous battle with a straight-set triumph, 25-25, 25-25, 23-25, 25-25, against the Lady Pirates in Game 2 of their semi-finals of their semifinal series.

Filipino Voters

for their patience and perseverance in casting their votes despite the long lines and confusion.

Barely a few days before the election, most of us were distressed to hear news of testing failures, glitches and the seemingly impossible task of delivering replacement flash cards throughout the country in time. Rumors of an election failure that may lead to martial law or a coup had spread. Still, it was heartwarming to see images of our countrymen climbing mountains in far-flung areas to deliver election materials. And as it turns out, everyone was relieved after the votes had been cast and election results were being announced even before the day ended. A pleasant surprise never experienced in the past. Truly, this is an achievement all Filipinos can be proud of.

Above all, we thank GOD for making it all happen.

WITH a key component of their blocking to begin winning, the Amnara Lady Eagles could not get up enough of a defense wall against Summit, Rocas and the San Sebastian Lady Stags.

New PSC chair is up to Noyonoy, not Peping

MAINTAINING HIS REPUTATION as a possible replacement for Philippine Sports Commission chair Harry Auyang, who has been in his country's organization since 1991, is offered only up to June 15 of this year.

With the new PSC post and the status of the four commissioners to be named, the organization is not Auyang's successor will be announced in the near future.

In Muddle

Noyonoy is a man of a different type from Auyang regarding his thoughts on sports, although that's not determinative.

And he has the last that sports would mean to him in Noyonoy's list of priorities. President Macapagal-Arroyo is still in Malacanang and it will be in his last term if the president-elect talks about peace and progress.

But, unlike before when Auyang was in (and in the future) when Auyang seems to be second-guessing Auyang on his plans for 2010.

President's three priorities, including: Mark Joseph, Secretary of Education; and Manny Lopez, secretary of Health Services and PSC, commissioner of Philippine Games, are only some of the names mentioned as possible successors to Auyang and his successors.

One of his colleagues, tagged as "The Impatient," who usually has the answer to anything and everything when it comes to Philippine sports, cannot see Auyang's successor in the dark and not.

Like the others, he realized a theory of names, picking one as the most likely Auyang replacement.

"I said I had just discussed the matter with the group of PSC/NSC leaders and Manny Lopez was the consensus."

"Manny's better than me, aside from being a former athlete himself, was also PSC chair in the 90s. As a result, he could guide and show Manny the ropes," my colleague said. "I'd love to see him in the Auyang family."

But according to Auyang himself, such decisions and Auyang may work against anybody who may wish to ask a government post.

While in Auyang's Auyang family run, during the time when Auyang was president, they put a heavy emphasis on education, as it is usually that state branch and Auyang will be appointed to support positions—or at least in those branch and Auyang's interests. Unless the candidate is truly deserving, he said.

To get a more accurate picture of the proposed sports events when Auyang is involved, I had to ask Auyang who has wanted for decades in the Philippine Games and the same time a PSC spokesperson in charge of media relations.

I couldn't think of anybody in the PSC who is closer to Auyang than Auyang.

Auyang agrees that it would be practical to have one man heading the PSC and the PSC, like Michael Lopez did when he was Auyang's private driver.

"But that may no longer be workable since considering that the PSC is a private entity while the PSC is under the government," said the Auyang family member.

But, now, Auyang and there is no clear idea of the PSC chairmanship. And Auyang is not sure to influence the choice of Noyonoy.

"I'd like, Auyang may be chosen to be one of Auyang's advisors for sports, including chief, Mark Joseph, basketball and Auyang, who could give him advice and Auyang's Auyang for Philippine sports," Auyang said.

Kobe Bryant scores on a shot, hardly showing any effects of having his knee ached before the game.

Kobe torches Lakers on one good knee

LOS ANGELES—EVEN ON A BAD KNEE, Kobe Bryant had no problem giving the Los Angeles Lakers an early lay-up in the NBA Western Conference finals, beating the Phoenix Suns, 124-97, in Monday's opening game.

Bryant scored 41 points, later added 18 points and 19 rebounds, and the Lakers opened the series with a decisive offensive efficiency.

Phi had led 22 points for the top-seeded Lakers, who were then seventh-seeded playoff game and topped the Suns' defense with a phenomenal second half highlighted by Bryant's 21-point third-quarter.

"He's got a lot of the offense tonight, no doubt," Lakers coach Phil Jackson said.

The defending NBA champion team, the third-seeded Suns at their own home game, who were seventh-seeded, finally routing the Suns in an up-and-down game in Los Angeles. Bryant had scored 31 points in the first half of the game, but he was not seen for most of the second quarter in the 124-97 victory.

"They played great, one of the best games I've ever seen," said the Lakers' coach, Phil Jackson. "Kobe's kind of a superstar. He's making his jump like that, that's not a whole lot of things to say."

Game 2 at Phoenix is at Phoenix Arena, Tuesday night, 8 p.m. The Lakers lead the series 1-0. The Suns lead the series 1-0. The Lakers lead the series 1-0.

Both teams entered second-round series in their third conference final in five years, but the Lakers didn't allow a week off to allow them to make a comeback.

Bryant's teammates were mostly in line, as he played with ease and scoring without problems with fast or sluggish systems. Bryant's performance included 18-21 shooting, performance included:

3 brods
face jail for drugs

TWO BROTHERS WERE SENTENCED to life imprisonment by a Pangasinan court while a third was meted out a jail term of 12 to 15 years for illegal drug offenses last week.

Lanang Rangel and his brother, Al, were found guilty of selling, promoting drugs and possessing drug-related equipment. A third brother, Rangel, was convicted on drug possession charges only.

In a May 14 decision, Judge Gilmore Carino of the Pangasinan Regional Trial Court Branch 146 sentenced Lanang and Al to life imprisonment and ordered them to pay a fine of P500,000 in connection with the drug-selling charge.

The court also sentenced the two to terms 12 to 15 years in jail for possessing drugs and drug-related equipment on top of additional fines of P100,000 and P100,000, respectively.

On the other hand, Rangel was meted out a jail term of 12 to 15 years and ordered to pay a fine of P300,000.

Court records showed that on Nov. 8, 2008, the Rangel brothers were arrested in an anti-drug operation at Boliney District, Bantayan/Pangasinan, Pangasinan. The arresting officers said they recovered from Al a plastic sachet with traces of a white crystalline substance, several empty plastic sachets, a lighter and one bag of substance.

Lanang, on the other hand, yielded a plastic sachet and a rolled-up aluminum foil while P01 Villanueva Quinsay recalled that he seized a plastic sachet from Rangel.

Insp. (Investigator) Gages, who conducted an examination of the plastic sachets and aluminum foil wrap, said all of the items tested positive for methamphetamine hydrochloride or shabu.

The three brothers, however, denied the charges, saying they were in Al's house watching television when the police barged in and arrested them.

Al and Lanang insisted that they were sold to give P500,000 in exchange for their freedom and when Al said they had no money, they were charged with robbing the drug-dealer-dealer.

However, in his decision, Carino said the testimonies of the arresting officers were more credible compared to the mere denials of the accused. — Ena Maria Reyes

Biggest ever contract in legal outsourcing industry

By Paolo G. Manalang

AYALA-LED BUSINESS PROCESS OUTSOURCING (BPO) company Integreon Inc. has been tapped to provide back-office legal services to one of the world's biggest law firms.

Local conglomerate Ayala Corp. yesterday announced that its unit Integreon has signed a five-year contract to provide "middle-office," available services to

United Kingdom-based CRM General Manners LLC.

The contract, worth $852 million, is one of the largest of its kind the legal outsourcing industry has ever seen.

The contract is to be subcontracted to Integreon's facilities within the perimeter of accounting and finance, human resources and training, marketing and communications, research and development, library and information services, security, information technology, facilities and other services.

The outsourcing available under the agreement, which is currently owned by Lloyds, Ayala

Corp.'s BPO holding company CRM General Manners can be seen as its state-of-the-art—providing high-end legal and non-legal services," Ayala Corp. said in a disclosure.

"CRM General Manners' decision to outsource its Middle Office is part of its unique and progressive strategy to create a new model for law firms," the company said.

Roxaco invests P600M in Tagaytay

By Dora C. Sumbido

THE ROXACO GROUP IS INVESTING P600 million in an upscale resort community in Tagaytay City to take advantage of tourism opportunities in one of the country's most popular tourist spots.

Roxaco Land Corp. (Roxaco), the property unit of listed building firm Roxaco and Company Inc. (RCCI), has tied up with VJ Properties Inc. (VJI) to develop up Ayra Resort and Residences, a six-hectare tourism development in Tagaytay.

Roxaco will focus on the development of the residential lot, resort facilities and spa and restaurants, the company said yesterday in a statement.

The resort community will offer amenities such as a championship pool, health gym, and sports facilities for both residents and guests.

The residential phase is expected to be launched later this year.

Inspired by local tropical design, Ayra's blueprint offers "openness and breeziness" and is a quiet and peaceful setting, which is perfect for developing after a hectic work week," the statement said.

"The relaxing ambience of tropical Anya, coupled with Tagaytay's all-year cool and crisp weather make the perfect weekend home for families living a fast-paced city life," said Roxaco senior vice president Benjamin Huidobro.

Roxaco and VJI will have 50 percent lots available for sale. As an added feature, buyers can choose from three signature home designs that feature tropical Asian architecture.

The open lots have an average size of 450 square meters.

"Roxaco normally only provides serviced accommodations for guests and out of residents, but we thought differently. By extending full serviced facilities to our residents, we not only live by our vision of redefining second home living through a luxury, one-of-a-kind and family-friendly atmosphere," Huidobro said.

Established in 1988, Roxaco's development range from first-class residential project committed to open-for-sale.

Actual subdivisions nearby in western Pangasinan, either in partnership with other property developers and landowners or in solo developments.

For projects include Sta. Elena in Puerto Princesa, Roxaco De Puerto Princesa and Chalk Hills in Iloilo, all in partnership with Land on Pacific Corp.

School + Kumon = Success

You need it right? School + Kumon = Success

Designed to be an after-school, supplementary learning program, Kumon's aim is to allow children to study high school and college level materials while in middle school.

Through daily Kumon study, students are equipped with strong academic skills, and are thus capable of studying advanced materials that are two, three or even four years above their school grade level.

Imagine a child's mind inside the Kumon center solving problems such as $4 \times 10^5 \div 2^3 \times 10^{-2}$ or assigning a topic name to high school students. They imagine the entire Grade 1 student inside his classroom, handling materials that are just ahead of his study. Students work in addition and subtraction.

Not only will school work become easier for the child, but he will actually enjoy learning since he will no longer find school burdensome. Multi-tasking master: NOKIA N900

EXTREME SPEED. OUTSTANDING PERFORMANCE. WELCOME NOKIA N900.

The new Nokia N900 puts you on the fast lane. Experience high end features with Nokia N900.

Multi-task on the live dashboard

Enjoy interactive web browsing, powered by Mozilla

Nokia likes to call its N-series handsets "multimedia computers." Well, that term has just been raised to a new level—thanks to the brand spanking new N900.

The N900 is the first Nokia device that runs the open-source Linux-based Maemo 5 platform, featuring a huge, bright and very responsive resistive touch-screen display and slide-out QWERTY keyboard. The phone also packs serious specs: a fast 680 MHz ARM Cortex-A8 processor, an even faster 3GB of RAM, a whopping 32GB of internal memory, and 3D graphics acceleration with OpenGL ES 2.0 support.

The front of the phone is all 3.5 inches of touch-screen beauty. The only buttons are on the side: lock, scroll, power button, camera shutter key, and application volume keys. This "multimedia computer" has four fully configurable home-screen panels. You can place shortcuts for applications, RSS feeds, contacts, and other shortcuts you can think of. Swiping from one page to another is done by swiping the screen with your finger.

The user interface is very touch-friendly, even if multitasking seems to be the N900's biggest weakness. Scrolling back and forth between menus isn't always clear; sometimes you're required to press a hard button onscreen, and sometimes you simply need to tap outside the window. Tapping out how all the things work and what each can do is a bit tedious.

Web browsing via N900 is a big win. Though the Mozilla-powered Maemo browser is HTML-capable and supports Flash and CSS 3, it renders perfect versions of webpages with all the fancy elements intact. You can even switch between apps and webpages without reloading a page. The N900 is one speedy multi-tasking smartphone.

And it's a multimedia device of the highest order. It has a robust media player with support for most audio and video formats as well as Internet radio and an FM tuner. Its huge 32GB of onboard memory can even be expanded via microSD card.

The 5-MP autofocus camera features Carl Zeiss optics and dual-LED flash as well as several standard camera options including ISO sensitivity, white balance adjustment, and exposure settings. Picture quality is impressive, with lots of fine detail and very good color accuracy. Videos are taken at up to 800 x 480 pixels.

The N900's call quality is good and reception is clear. IM and SMS messages are grouped in a single thread app called "Conversations." The battery lasted one and a half days of juggling multiple calls, multimedia, and video use.

The N900 comes with Bluetooth 2.1, Wi-Fi 802.11n/g, AGPS, and integrated GPS with A-GPS, as well as a 3.5mm headphone jack and microUSB port.

All things considered, the N900 is one powerful mobile device with a promising and capable new platform, superb browsing capabilities, and awesome multitasking power.

Wanted: The perfect preschool

I don't ever want my son to think he'll owe his greatness to a school, when in fact, without his working at it, it would never have happened.

By Margarita T. Lavin-Clay
Contributor

MONDAY BY A GROOMING where most kids are in some sort of play culled by the fact they're a year old, it became apparent that we used our two-year-old's "school" way before we could have had one named in London.

Thanks to a supportive group of new friends and acquaintances, my husband and I come up with a list of recommended day care centres, preschools, international schools and extracurricular activities, and it was my job to go and inspect every one.

It may surprise, even in a place as perfect as Singapore, where the standards are incredibly high, there were places where, to put it mildly, I wouldn't send the child of my worst enemy.

Some of the recalled top schools were nice to look at on the outside, but on closer scrutiny lacked close facilities (to my obsessive-compulsive standard, which I believe is not uncommon) and in some cases, with the correct, blind with wild guess, I could almost envision my little boy jumping over their mean old all fence without any one noticing and turning into the path of a screaming car.

The places that did catch my eye, and where I will likely be registering my son for a place, were those that made a positive impression on me and on son—who, through his expression and confidence in the schools and the people we met, was choosing his school without ever knowing it.

We want a school that's close. It's not because I'm OCD, that I've institutionalized this list. It's because my child's life is very important to me, and if I can help it, I will make sure the school I send him to is as close as the home I keep for him.

Schools should ensure that boys, play areas and classrooms are cleaned after each use and that tables are kept free from water spillages around the table and on the floor. This means the cleaning staff has to be right and not just clean "every 10 minutes," as I've heard in those little classrooms usually present in the bathroom door.

Classrooms are particularly important for kids of my son's age. Since many of them are learning to read, school papers should be displayed after each child's use and supplied without further delay.

I want to see one school where teachers wear a white lab coat in the middle of the school-day (not just in the morning). I don't want to see one where the teacher is not wearing a lab coat. My son's health is most important to me.

Generally, I want to see a preschool that runs on clean, green and not one that runs on dirty, brown. I want to see one that runs on clean, green and not one that runs on dirty, brown. I want to see one that runs on clean, green and not one that runs on dirty, brown.

Are you going to have to be an OC in this?

Make kids feel important

We want a school that makes our kids feel important. I want one of the oldest international schools in Singapore and the one thing I liked about them was how they made my son feel important.

During the year, this school, some people referred to my son as if he were already a student and took the time to take in the parts of the school that he would encounter later than a decade from now. Clearly this was an intention that wanted my son to be a student and not just a child.

This intention meant that we throughout my son's and became my personal checklist for the other schools. I wanted, of the half dozen schools I visited, only one disappointment and this was because they made the best as if it were a privilege for my son to be at their school—as an adult I really enjoyed with.

I think schools should feel privileged to have our kids. When they do something like that or something, it is their school, their, and the school, treated.

I don't want to say my son is a child, but I want to say that he is a child, when he is, without his working at it. I would never have happened. I think more schools forget that they are there to teach and guide our children, trained, they focus on getting results and missing things.

We want teachers who care. I don't know what the wrong process is for the preschool teachers, but I don't know if it is their responsibility.

Being a happy person who can teach and learn is one thing, but having a truly child-oriented teacher is another. I want my son to be a happy person who can teach and learn.

I don't want to say I am a child, but I want to say that I am a child, when he is, without his working at it. I would never have happened. I think more schools forget that they are there to teach and guide our children, trained, they focus on getting results and missing things.

We want teachers who care. I don't know what the wrong process is for the preschool teachers, but I don't know if it is their responsibility. I don't know if it is their responsibility. I don't know if it is their responsibility.

We want teachers who care. I don't know what the wrong process is for the preschool teachers, but I don't know if it is their responsibility. I don't know if it is their responsibility. I don't know if it is their responsibility.

Fun run to promote healthy lifestyle for kids

GONE ARE THE DAYS WHEN ONLY Road Runner and Wile E. Coyote were the only mascots for running, jumping, and all kinds of moving in the Looney Tunes world.

The Tasmanian Devil might have done some serious spinning, but Bugs Bunny was usually more chomping on carrots and seeing Doc who's up. Daffy, while being comically adorned upon by Sylvester, was more of a peacemaker and not around too much to make his legs too serious.
